STANLEY C. AND
SELMA D. HOLLANDER
FACULTY BOOK
COLLECTION
Books, Multimedia Works,
Musical Scores, and Recordings • 2015
The Stanley C. and Selma D. Hollander Faculty Book Collection was established by the MSU Libraries in 1998 to recognize and honor the scholarly work of MSU faculty members who have written, edited, or translated a book or musical score; contributed to a multimedia work; or participated in a professionally recorded musical performance.

Wherever possible, the library acquires two copies of each work: one for the Main Library or appropriate branch library, and the other for the MSU Faculty Book Collection, located on the first floor of the Main Library near the Director’s Office.

Titles for the collection are identified by the subject librarians who serve as liaisons to MSU colleges and departments, and through extensive database searches using current lists of MSU faculty provided by the Provost’s Office. Works by retired faculty and by academic staff are included whenever they are identified.

Authors with new works published in 2015 are listed in this program and are our honored guests at the MSU Faculty Authors’ Reception for 2016.

James Madison College
One year ago, the MSU Libraries received our largest ever gift: 862,000 items of media from the ROVI Corporation of Ann Arbor.

The ROVI gift did not arrive out of the blue. MSU competed with several other institutions, including the Smithsonian, for this tremendous acquisition. Our commitment to serving both researchers and the public tipped the balance in our favor, and our ability to meet ROVI’s urgent deadlines sealed the deal.

MSU’s new ROVI Media Collection is the largest in the world, by a considerable margin. Music CDs total more than 725,000—while the three largest music library collections in the U.S. each have about 65,000 items.

Similarly, the nearly 165,000 film DVDs now at MSU represent the most extensive library film collection believed to exist outside the Library of Congress. Although the DVD format is only 20 years old, many thousands of older films have been re-released on DVD since then—so that the ROVI collection is an unrivaled resource for film history back to its earliest days.

The ROVI Collection also has more than 17,000 video games—three times as many as the next largest library video game collections. This new resource will greatly benefit the College of Communication Arts and Sciences, with its graduate certificate in Serious Game Design and Research, its undergraduate minor in Game Design & Development, and its Games for Entertainment and Learning Lab.

“Rovi’s extensive collection of entertainment media has enabled the cataloging, metadata tagging, and editorial description of numerous albums, artists, movies, TV shows, and video games for our customers worldwide,” says Kathy Weidman, senior vice president and general manager, metadata, ROVI. “Our donation to Michigan State University marks the passing of these materials for use in an educational capacity, while also providing accessibility to the general public. It is extremely gratifying to establish the largest collection of entertainment content in a U.S. library and allow future generations to access and enjoy these wonderful media artifacts from the past two decades.”

“We are honored to be the proprietors of the largest media archive in the country, which has quickly become the most requested material in the Michigan inter-library loan system,” says Clifford H. Haka, director of libraries, Michigan State University. “The Rovi Media Collection dramatically enhances our teaching curriculum and research within the College of Music, popular culture and film studies, and an emerging gaming program. Assembling a collection of such cultural and historic importance and overall magnitude would simply not have been feasible with our current budget. On behalf of all of our users at MSU and across Michigan, we thank Rovi for this generous gift.”

Of course, expansion of our media collection doesn’t affect our commitment to books and journals—those fundamental resources which document the worldwide scholarly conversation, and preserve the knowledge produced by committed researchers for generations to come.
